

Robert and Lindsey

Dear Birth Mother,

How does one start out a letter to a person they have never met, but are so grateful for? We cannot even begin to imagine all the emotions you must be experiencing during this time. Just as the day we learned of Lindsey's infertility, this must be one of the most saddening days of your life. Our respect for you is beyond words. You are turning a difficult situation into a gift for someone. To be chosen and become parents will be one of the happiest days of our life. Not only have we prayed for this child, but we have prayed for you also. We have prayed for strength, courage, and peace to flow within you as you make this selfless decision. Our heart aches along with yours as you make the decision of adoption for you and your child, but fills with joy at knowing, if chosen, our prayers have been heard. We would be honored to walk down this path with you and your baby; through the tears and joy. Your baby will know nothing short of love and compassion. If you choose us we will be unable to ever express our gratitude for the most beautiful and precious gift ever. We would love to meet you and start growing a relationship with you. We feel having a relationship with you, as the birth mom, is a very important detail in this journey. We would be privileged to send pictures and letters and if the relationship grew, to do visits. We hope you enjoy looking through our album and seeing a little about who we are!

Love,

Robert and Lindsey

Views on Adoption

When we realized having children of our own was not an option, we knew adoption was the next step for us. We consider birth parents a blessing and our child will always know how much their birth parents love them.

Openness

Letters and pictures

Our Family

Most of our family lives near us. We love to spend time with our family. Roberts has two siblings who are in the military, but they come home to visit when they can. Lindsey has 5 half siblings who she loves to spend time with when she is able. Both of us are blessed to have amazing grandparents in our lives who were great role models for us. All of our family is excited for us to become parents.
