

LINDSAY

...WAITING TO BECOME A FAMILY OF THREE

Dear Birth Parent,

Words fall short in this moment of monumental decision-making. I don't think anyone ever plans to be in your situation. Life is difficult, complicated, and often messy. Your choice of adoption is sacred, selfless, and brave. I promise to honor that; to honor YOU.

Your baby will grow up knowing your name(s) and knowing as much about you as you'll allow to me share. I'll tell them of the great love that carried them for nine months and placed them in my arms. They'll understand their family dynamic is unique, blended, and beautiful. Most importantly, they'll know they are wildly loved by you and by me, and I'm confident that love will carry them always.

I'm a single mom who enjoys the best of both worlds: mothering and career. I own a business that provides me with stability and flexibility, which is key to my work/life success.

I have a large extended family and we're often together. There are several kids, and we enjoy many outings and adventures as a group. Our ethnicities vary and our differing backgrounds add to the cultural richness of our family. Your child will be welcomed with open arms and will have many cousins to share life with!

The decision ahead of you is weighty. I hope you'll consider me to be a mom to your little one, but if not, I still wish you much love, light, and peace in the days and years ahead.

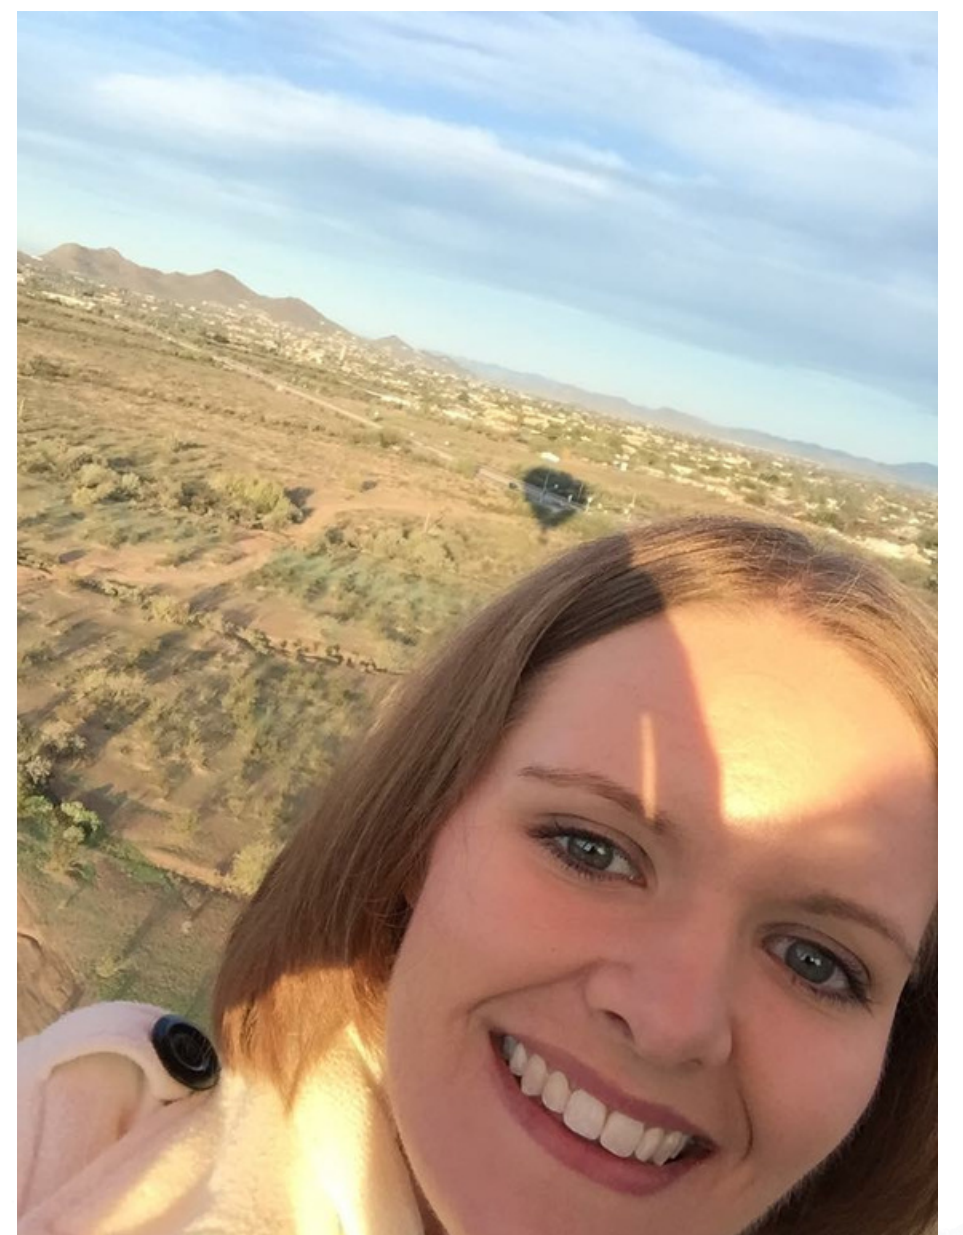

With Gratitude and Admiration,
Lindsay, a waiting mom

Our story begins with adoption

My daughter came to me as a foster placement at age 2, and her adoption was finalized at age 4. She understands that she did not grow in my belly, and we celebrate that she has two moms who love her very much. Adoption isn't a taboo in our house, and it certainly isn't a secret; rather, a forever expansion of our family. I believe a child can never have too many people who love and care for them, and this principal will guide our adoption of the coming baby. I value and respect the hope of open adoption and feel it will be in baby's best interest.

Meet, Nora

Playful, imaginative, and nurturing. Almost always smiling!

Four years old and can't wait to be a "big"
sister!

Our Pets

We have two dogs at home. Max is a lab mix and he is a gentle giant. Molly is a goldendoodle that loves to play! Both dogs love taking car rides and long walks! The cats, or "twins" as we call them, are Pumpkin and Jade. Pumpkin is a typical cat but Jade loves to snuggle and play!

Thank you for your consideration. I hope to have the opportunity to meet you soon.
